

Hello Experimenters!

I hope that all of you in the states were able to take the holiday yesterday and keep it however you usually do. I took some time to reread a speech Dr. King delivered in 1967, which I'm sharing as one of the readings this week. I know that the temptation to flatten thinkers and readers to juxtapose them can sometimes overwhelm our sense of curiosity and inquiry—I, too, have been guilty of that in the past. I hope that these readings give you time and space to question the narratives we are given in the name of a more digestible history.

In solidarity,
Gabby
